Miss Pollard Makes an Impression.

Her Telling Replies Amaze Her Ouestioners.

Relations With the Hon. Mr. Breckinridge.

Made Her Promise to Give Her Baby Away-They Talked of Marriage While His First Wife Was Alive.

sted Press Leased-wire Service WASHINGTON, March 19.-Madeline Pollard faced her corespondent on the witness stand today, and a continuous f cross-questions was directed at The trial was like a play in her. The trial was like a play in which one actor is starred to the ex-clusion of all others. Maj. Ben Butterworth, the ex-Congressman from Ohio played a minor part as the questioner all the interest centering about the slender, black-robed plaintiff in the case. It was the most interesting day of the sensational trial, and it was of the sensational trial, and it was made more so by the masterful display of intellectual resources, of quick perception and of telling replies which flashed forth at every turn of the plea, as the lawyers followed up every possible trail which might lead to admissions casting any sort of shadow on the life of the woman, apart from those passages which have been identified with the career of the Kentucky Congressman.

Miss Pollard has shown herself to be wonderful woman. Whatever opin-ons may have been held by the men, nost of them of high standing in the community, who sat listening all day as though to the revelation of a fasci-nating story rather than a woman's re-cital of sorrow and disgrace; all of them were constrained to admit their admiration of her intelligence, her quick perception and her effective com-mand of words. Seldom does a witness manage to give replies so telling in sup-port of her own case and keep within the limits of the courtroom regulations, and several times the plaintiff's attor neys admonished her to confine he statements to as wers to the question which were put.

Cross-examination of Miss Pollard by ex-Con-gressman Butterworth. WASHINGTON, March 19.—The bailiffs had the utmost difficulty in repelling the crowds who sought admit-tance to the courtroom where the Pol-lard-Breckinridge trial is in progress. Miss Pollard was again on the stand under direct examination. She related in greater detail than heretofore the attempts of Breckinridge to seduce her

He told her she had a wonderful intellect and had a brilliant future. "I seemed to be completely under the influence of his wonderful power of persuasion," she said. He promised of persuasion," she said. He promised to oversee her education and repay the money paid by Rhodes for her schooling. "He did not accomplish his purpose the first day, in spite of his violent efforts," she continued, "and it was only late the second day that we were in a house of automation in Cincinnati." Relations were then established, she averred, and continued until May 17, 1893, last, the time she saw Brecking see marriage to Mrs. Wing, which inridge's marriage to Mrs. Wing, which occurred secretly on April 29, 1893.

Then the cross-examination was resumed by Butterworth, going into minute details of the plaintiff's life, to all of which she returned replies which could have given no comfort to he pponents.
In the course of her examination the witness explained the circumstances of an alleged visit to 'Squire Kinsey's house, in Bridgeport, Ky., where she stopped in 1882 and 1883. Some of the names mentioned she did not remember. but recalled that of Alexander Julian a blind man, with whom and the plain-tiff the defense will try to show a mock marriage, and subsequently unseemly proceedings at 'Squire Kinsey's. declared that Julian would not even have dared to caress her; she did not remember any mock marriage, and, moreover, her Uncle George was not with her at that time. He was very strict, and would not have allowed anything of the sort. Several letters were shown her, one

Several letters were shown her, one of which she admitted having written to Owen Robinson. The others she might have written, s.e. said. One contained a lock of hair. The letters were then read. They were of a school-girl character with expressions of a more or less lovesick character. She said she and Owen were good friends but there was no love affair between them.

This afternoon Butterworth again referred to the letter which Miss Pollard averred Friday was not written by herself. She read it carefully, then said: "I did not write that letter. I never did. I pronounce it a forged letter. I never wrote such things as are in that and no one knows it better than the man who sits beside you. An expert might have done it and did."

Referring to the circumstances of did."

Referring to the circumstances of Col. Breckinridge's first visit to her at the seminary, she said: "He said he had come to see me and he overpowered me with a glance."
Butterworth asked whether she knew much about him. "I don't think anybody knew very much about Col. Breckinridge until lately," she replied antickly.

"What do you mean by that?" asked

"What do you mean by that?" asked Butterworth.
"You know," was the response. Butterworth disavowed knowledge open that point. Miss Pollard said: "Roselfe is a candidate for government office in Breckinridge's district."
Recurring to incidents in the house of Sarah Goss, Miss Pollard said: "It was during that half hour that I agreed to give myself—soul, body and life—to that man. I promised; and up to May 17, 1893, I was faithful to him."
"Up to that time your life had been pure?"

"It had."

"You knew Col. Breckinridge was a married man?"

"He told me so."

"You knew he had a wife and children?"

"You among the following the so."

"He told me so."

"What relation did you propose to sustain to him in the future?"

"I thought nothing of it. I think under the circumstances people originally to not."

spectability and standing?
"I did not then."
"How soon did you realize it?"
"Not until he had made me an outcast (weeping;) until he had made my life too hard to bear. He rulned me, but I loved him then. His slightest wish was law to me then."
"But you knew your course was all wrong?"

"Breckinridge was a man who could make anything seem right with his arguments."

During this passage, which seemed to affect Miss Pollard deeply, and visibly moved the audience of men before her. Col. Breckinridge sat facing her. with his chin resting on his hands and no traces of emotion appearing on his face.

Once, when Butterworth inquired how long they had remained in the assignation house at Cincinnati, Miss Pollard replied she could not remember, it must have been two or three hours, and added: "How long was it, Mr. Breckinridge?" an interrogation which provoked a laugh. Miss Pollard's expenses, while at school in Lexington, it was developed, had been partly paid by Col. Breckinridge, but he could not give her very much because it would have awakened the suspicions of Mr. Rhodes.

Mr. Butterworth. You knew that if your relations became known it would mean disgrace to both of you?

Miss Pollard. You know it.

"You concealed your relations with him, then?"

"Id did my part and he did his."

"Did Mr. Rhodes pay your board?"

"You don't think even Mr. Breckinridge was as bad as that? Mr. Rhodes paid my tuiton."

Questions were asked regarding the location of Miss Pollard's room at her boarding-place, with two other ladies, while she attended the Sayre Institute in Lexington, evidently with the intention of showing that she might have received visitors at night unknown to the rest of the household.

"Indeed, he did not, or Mr. Breckinridge would not have been living toasked.

"Indeed, he did not, or Mr. Breckin-ridge would not have been living to-day."

Indeed, ne did not, or Mr. Breckin, i'dre would not have been living to-day."

"Then you were under a sort of a contract to marry Mr. Rhodes, in return for the money for your schooling. Mr. Breckinridge was keeping you, and you were engaged to Rhodes?"

"Yes, Butterworth, it was as bad as it sounds, and he knew it all," referring to Mr. Breckinridge.

Speaking of her life in Cincinnati, when her first child was born. Miss-Pollard said she had told all sorts of mysterious stories to keep people from suspecting her identity. "I took the little room opposite the mattress factory, because it was inexpensive, and he could not afford to pay much money for me," she said. "Please remember the state of my mind when that article was written. I was almost insane." she replied, when a minor discrepancy between her testimony and the article purporting to be hers was recently published in the Norwood convent she had worn a veil so that no one but Sister Cecella had seen her face. During that time her letters to Col. Breckinridge had been addressed to "Margaret Dillon, box No. 47, Lexington, Ky." She had visited the convent after the suit was filed. Sister Agnes had not at first recognized her, but, before she left her, said; "She has undoubtedly been here."

"Did she not tell you that you were an immoral woman?" asked Mr. But-

"She did not. She attempted to give me a sort of lecture. She asked me why I wanted to ruin that old man in his old age. I replied: 'Why did he attempt to ruin me in my youth?' "Did you not tell her this suit was brought for revenge?"
"That is as false as words can be framed. I told her I wanted him to bear his share of the responsibility in this matter and that I would go through the world carrying my own share and thait I would not bear all the burden he has placed on me. I believe there is principle behind this matter. I believe that justice will be done and I believe that these men (turning to the jury) will help me to (turning to the jury) will help me to see it done."

see it done."
When Mr. Butterworth asked some questions about money matters Miss Pollard said that the only effort was at a time referred to as she always had tried to conceal her relations with Needlands.

Mr. Butterworth. You have not done anything as a free and independent agent since you passed under his control?

done anything as a free and independent agent since you passed under his control?

Shaking her head she replied: "I don't believe I ever have."

Mr. Butterworth was asking Miss Pollard about her ambitions for the future in those early years, when she said: "I knew I was to always be in Mr. Breckinridge's life, because the night before I left for the Norwood Asylum he made me promise to give my baby away. He said that if he was ever able to marry me he would and if he could not marry me he would keep me in his life always."

"Did you have any woman before you as an idea!" Mr. Butterworth asked; and as Miss Pollard was answering "No, sir; I hope to make a name by living——"her lawyers objected and the Judge sustained the objection. Miss Pollard, to further questions, said that on her return from Washington in the fall of 1892, when Breckinridge first formally proposed to marry her he had met her—

"Was it in a proper place?" interrupted Mr. Butterworth.
"It was not. I was in a house of assignation on A street. He said to me: 'Madeline, this is no place to talk of these things,' so we went out on the street together. He told me about his children, his prospects and affairs."

"Did you ever talk of marriage while his wife was living?"

"Very rarely."
"But you did talk of it?"
"We did."

The Commissioners' Case Now in the Courts.

Walte's Tart Dispatch to Gen Tarsney - The Contempt Cases May Include the Colrado Executive.

sseciated Press Leased-wire Service. DENVER March 19.-The Supreme Court room was crowded this afternoon with lawyers, politicians and other inerested citizens while arguments were being made on the question submitted by the Governor to decide whether Orr and Martin or Mullins and Barnes are legally entitled to act as members of the Fire and Police Board. Wells, Taylor & Taylor, counsel for Orr and Martin, whom the Governor attempted to remove, yielding to the force of public opinion, concluded to appear on be-half of their clients and in a communication to the court declared: "Should the court, despite its set-tied determinations heretofore ex-pressed in kindred cases, conclude that it has the authority and shall, therefore, try in this summary and unusual way the title to these offices and shall judicially determine the issue adversely to our clients, we shall advise them to promptly comply with such ruling and to immediately surrender the places they now hold, without further contention.' Orr and Martin have agreed to follow the advice of their counsel. These lawyers presented themselves, however, not to argue the case on its merits, but to contend that it should be referred to the District Court, from be referred to the District Court, from which an injunction had been issued forbidding the unseating of the old members of the board, as a question of private right was involved. Thomas Ward. Platt Rogers, J. Warner Mills and Charles Hartzel presented the case for the Governor. They argued that a "solemn occasion" had arisen and the public police depended upon the Supreme Court making answer to the question submitted to the Governor as provided in the Constitution. They cited decisions of the court to prove that no private right was involved and that the Governor, in removing Orrand Martin for causes stated in writing, and not of a political nature, had exercised a right inherent in his office and that no court had the right to review his action. The court took the matter under advisement. Its decision is not expected until the latter part of the week.

At the City Hall nearly all traces of the recent bloodless war have vanished. He explained that he decided to recall the troops on the statement of the Adjutant-General that there was no disorder at the camp and that no process of the court had been violated nor was there reason to believe that any disorder was contemplated.

It was the opinion of the Governor and his friends that Sheriff Bowers had acted somewhat hastily in calling for troops. The militia will begin their march from Cripple Creek tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock and will reach here tomorrow afternoon. The order to disband will not be given until the men are settled in their armory and a strong guard will be left on 'duty' until the Governor is convinced that it will not be necessary to storm the City Wallerten will not be necessary to storm the City Hall again.

Some questions asked the attorneys by the judges indicated that the latter are of the opinion that the Governor made the "solemn occasion" by calling out the militia, and will give an opinion as to his right to do so. basis of nine hours for the day shift and eight for the night shift, the miners to receive $3.25 per shift. This offer was made when the day men quit work several weeks ago and was refused. It was renewed and last night was accepted by the Miners' Union. Everything was quiet today.

Although the militia is still here not a single arrest has been made today. This lethargy on the part of the authorities evidently influenced the Governor to recall the troops. The mine-owners, business men and others have appointed a committee to wait upon the Governor and to try and prevail upon him to rescind the order.

Adjt.-Gen. Tarsney, inding he could not get transportation until morning, made a trip to Bull Hill this afternoon and while he was absent the following characteristic message was received from the Governor:

Gen. Tarsney: Can get nothing by telephone, only that you have disobeyed my orders. Return troops at once to respective armories.

The general was well received by the miners, who assured him they would use no violence.

Associated Press Lessed-wire Service. OMAHA, March 19.-Four Treasury Department secret service men, in addition to the regular force employed at division headquarters and the forces of the United States Marshal's office, are working in Omaha and vicinity to unearth a private mint which has already turned out over 500,000 standard silver dollars using the same amount of silver and alloy as the government. The place has been in operation for some time and it is said that it is impossible to detect the difference between the money made by the counterfeiters and the genuine turned out by the Federal mints. The profits of the gang are made from the seigniorage, which is said to give the makers a rake-off of 51 cents on each dollar made. LONDON, March 19.—(By Atlantic Cable.) Replying, to John Redmond, the Parnellite leader in the House of Commons today, John Morley, Chief ecretary for Ireland, referring to the provisions of the Evicted Tenants Bill and whether it will be the first measure to proceed with, said it would not be the first measure put forward. He was unable to say when it would be pro-ceeded with. The Registration of Votes Bill would be the first measure which the government would ask Parliament

Lord Randolph Churchill came to the front again by making a motion that Lord Roseberry had infringed upon the liberties and privileges of the House of Commons by concerning him-self with the election of a member of the House of Commons through his speech made at Edinburgh on Saturday. This speech, according to Lord Churchill, must have an influence upon the pending election at Leatny. Immediately after assembling this afternoon the operators proposed to Mr. Korty that a stenographer becalled in, the differences existing be called in, the differences existing be noted and the conference be dropped. To this Mr. Korty demurred. The operators pointed out the futility of proceeding, showing that not a single point had been agreed upon, but Mr. Korty insisted on going ahead. Some discussion followed and the conference agreed to abandon the rules and regulations consideration for the time and to take up the wage schedule.

They began the work, station by station, commencing at Council Bluffs, and when an adjournment was taken this evening they had gotten as far as Lexington, Neb. In this time the operators had made two concessions and the company had made none.

During the afternoon the engineers entertained Mr. Dickinson in the presence of Mr. Clark, putting the general manager of the Union Pacific in a hole on the overtime question. Dickinson conceded that the engineers of the fast mail were entitled to extra pay. The noted and the conference be dropped.

conceded that the engineers of the fast mail were entitled to extra pay. The engineers asserted that men on slow trains who were willing to make fast time and could not on account of the company's fault should also be allowed extra pay. This matter is still unsettled.

The afternoon closed with the cost of engines and mileage on different roads under discussion. The engineers have one set of tables and Dickinson another and each side insists that its tables are correct. After the adjournment the engineers decided that an agreement was apparently out of the question. They do not hope to come together on the rules and regulations at any point.

When asked concerning the conference and the likelihood of a break leading to the total failure of the effort at compromise, Chief Clark said he did not so regard it. He said it was expected that each side would contend for so much if not more than it might hope to secure in the court's final decision. He believes the daily conferences will continue until the court has ruled upon these differences, then the men will decide to strike or accept the court's decision.

Chief Clark, as chairman of the federation, believes its operations will eventually lead to the abolition of strikes.

As there was no quorum this morning no effort was made to take up the New Mexico Statehood Bill. In committee of the whole on the Sun-Civil Bill the paragraph appripriat-$750,000, to be expended under the ection of the Missouri River Com-direction of the Missouri River Com-mission, was taken up.

Mr. Catchings continued for a brief time his argument against parceling out by restriction portions of the river and harbor appropriations made under and narbor appropriations made under the continuing contract system.

Mr. Hermann of Oregon eulogized the contract system for the waterways of the country; the inauguration of which, he said, was one of the grandest achievements of the Fifty-first Congress. Mr. Loud of California criticised the finjustice of the system to those "who are not in on the proposition." No man

Mr. Loud of California criticised the mjustice of the system to those "who are not in on the proposition." No man was better able to defend the system than Mr. Catchings, nor to second it than Mr. Hermann, both of whom had their projects in which they were interested in the system. His objection to the river and harbor improvements were that they were not to be made to benefit the whole country, but to satisfy certain interests.

Mr. Hainer of Nebraska criticised severely the work of the Missouri River Commission. Of the $4,000,000 appropriated, $500,000 had been used on the same reach of fourteen miles at Jefferson City. At the present rate it would require $80,000,000 and $20 years to reach Sloux City. The Missouri River Commission proposed to expend over $600,000 of the sum carried by this paragraph in first reach of the river above Kansas City. Not one dollar was to be used for Omaha, Atchison and Leavenworth and the other cities on the river, where the Missouri was making great encroachments.

Mr. Pickler of South Dakota advocated an amendment to divert $100,000.

of the appropriation for the Missouri for the stretch of 1800 miles above Sioux City.

Mr. Heard defended the Missouri River Commission and the money expended at Jefferson City.

Mr. Mercer of Nebraska advocated his amendment to set aside $50,000 of the Missouri appropriation for the removal of snags and obstructions above Sioux City, and $150,000 for the construction and repair of reverments and dikes and works between the south line of Nebraska and Sioux City.

After a few closing words by Mr. Hutchings warning the House against demoralizing the systematic work done by the commission by parceling out portions of the appropriations, action was had on the pending amendments. The first was Mr. Broderick's to set aside $50,000 to strengthen the dikes at Atchison and Leavenworth, Kan. It was lost.

The Pickler and Mercer amendments were also lost.

The next and last paragraph in the bill was that relating to soldiers' homes under bonds and requiring an annual report on the conditions of the homes under bonds and requiring an annual report on the conditions of the homes to the Secretary of War. Mr. Black of Illinois, one of the members of the board of managers of national homes, opposed the two clauses referred to. Congress, he said, had dealt munificently with this board. Over $60,000,000 had been appropriated; not one dollar had been lost. Suits for recovery were pending against Gen. Butler's estate in Massachusetts and a recent treasurer in Wisconsin. Some 33,000 old soldiers were maintained at these homes. He was opposed to the change as proposed by the bill. It might handicap the managers.

Mr. Cannon advocated the change. Mr. Cannon advocated the change and these homes. He was opposed to the change as proposed by the bill. It might handicap the managers.

THE TARIFF BILL

Abrogation of the Reciprocity Treaties—Further Changes to Be Made.

WASHINGTON, March 19. — The Democratic members of the Senate Finance Committee have completed their work on the tariff bill, and will submit the changes in the draft of the sub-committee at a meeting of the full committee. The principal changes are made in the sugar schedule, which have been modified so as to take into consideration color as well as polarization. The change made is 1½ cents per pound on color test so as to insure the refiner this much protection. This is in accordance with the original intention of the committee, but it has been claimed that the bill as it was first reported to the full committee, would discriminate against the refiners.

It is undestood the bill will be amended so as to make a positive declaration for the abrogation of the reciprocity treaties made under the McKinley act. This is to satisfy the fears of the sugar men, though the committee is satisfied that the bill as it stands would do so. It is also probable the clause abrogating the Hawalian treaty will be stricken out. There has been some contention among the Democratic members on this score, and two or three votes have been taken upon the proposition to strike it out, the majority at first opposing the change.

The principal argument for was based upon the ground of expediency. It was urged that if it were permitted to remain it would be the means of introducing Hawafian complications into the tariff discussion. All agreed this should be avoided if possible without surrendering too much, and the latest reliable statement is that this argument won.

These, with the restoration of the present law regarding the tax on domestic cigars, will be the principal changes made. The lead ore duty, with the tax on whisky and duty on coal and iron ore, remains as placed in the bill by the Democratic members.

There have been a few changes in the fruit schedule, and a few minor articles which were taken from the free list

There have been a few changes in the fruit schedule, and a few minor articles which were taken from the free list and made dutlable will be restored to the free list. The bill when it next sees the light will also show several changes in the administrative part.

At the meeting of the full Finance Committee this afternoon it was announced that the bill as amended by the Democrats since the meeting on Saturday would not be laid before the committee before tomorrow. Meantime further changes will probably be made.

Fifteen Insurgent Officers Said to Have Been Shot.

Pretty Plot Which Was Disclosed Through the Loquacity of the Projectors-The American Fleet to sociated Press Leased-wire Service

NEW YORK, March 19 .- (Associated Copyright, 1894.) The following has been received from the Asociated Press correspondent at Rio de Janeiro, under date of February 14: A proposed uprising in the city of Rio in favor of the rebels has come to an inglorious end. It was a pretty plot, and in it were involved a num ber of prominent citizens and a com-pany of national guards. Had the conspirators had common sense they would have succeeded in carrying out their plans.

The details of the plot were worked out on Friday night. The citizens, with arms under their coats, were to go Monday morning to the San Sento. Concelaco and Sande hills, garrisoned by the government. The officers there were in the plot, and were to admit them and join them, with as many of their soldiers as they could persuade to do so. The other soldiers were to be overpowered or killed.

soldiers as they could persuade to do so. The other soldiers were to be soverpowered or killed.

The rebel fleet, at the first shot, or at a given signal, was to hurry and at a given signal, was to hurry and and land its men to help the plotters. Their total force would be a little over a thousand men. It would occupy a strong position, and would probably be rapidly increased by volunteers from the city. So far the plot was strictly business. To the exuberant Brazilian mind a plot so well laid must succeed, ergo, it had already succeeded ergo, they might as well boast about it. so they did. Nearly every conspirator went about telling his friends the next day Pefxotto was to be humbled and the revolution was to be succeeded. The British, who are very instimate with the rebels, were, of course, notified, and the two principal banks went so far as to post notices, informing their clerks that they need not come to business on Monday, as there was to be heavy firing.

In less than an hour everyone in the commercial quarter knew that something was going to happen Sunday and Monday. Even then the plot came near succeeding through the influence of another idea, for although the government was fully aware of the comespiracy nothing was immediately done to thwart it. All day Sunday nothing was said or done to obstruct the course of officers and chizens were made. It is said fifteen officers were shot; if so, it was done secretly.

A member of President Peixotto's Cabinet informed the Associated Presicours phasis, declared it was false.

the epidemic stage, so that the British steamers coming north will not touch at Rio. It does not appear that there is any further use for keeping an American maa-of-war here, as the insurrection has been put down and a longer stay of the vessels would be injurious. PHILLIPS.

Immediately upon the receipt of this dispatch Secretary Herbert sent orders to the New York to proceed north to the West Indies. She will probably touch at some cable port and receive further orders. The Charleston was directed to go to Montevideo, where she will probably get orders to proceed to the Pacific station. The Newark, now at Montevideo, will remain there as the flagship of the station, supported by the Yantic.

Several earnest speeches were made, and, by unanimous vote, the name of "The McKinley Republican Club of Los Angeles" was adopted, and the members will be found among the most earnest workers to secure the nomination and election of the great leader and champion of American industries. The next meeting of the club will be held at the same place on next Thursday night, when a permanent organization will be perfected.

At a meeting of the Citizens' League at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday the old Executive Committee was re-elected and F. W. Wood added to that body. The old officers were then re-elected, with T. D. Stimson as president and G. J. Griffith secretary. It was decided to hold a mass-meeting in the Grand Operahouse Saturday evening at 8 o'clock to discuss charter revision, when addresses will be made by Hon., Joseph Medill of Chicago, Hon. John W. The School Children Organizing for the Parade.

A Number of Companies Organized Vesterday Who Will Be Drilled Regularly Up to the Date of

The public schools are taking up with enthusiasm the organizing of ca-det companies for the children's fiesta parade, Thursday, April 12. Yesterday nearly every school in the city devoted an hour or two to this work. Under the instruction of Superintendent Le-roy S. Brown, and the offer of a banner to the first company formed, the work began eagerly and early in the morning. By 10 o'clock reports began to be received at the Superintendent's office in the City Hall, from the various schools announcing the progress made, and continued to come in all day.

Prof. C. J. Rhode, instructor in physical collins, here are received to the control of the c and Gates-street and Griffin-avenue schools.

The pupils have been organized in companies of fifty, with a captain, two lieutenants and a sergeant. The girls' companies are formed and officered the same as the boys. Much emulation in drill progress has been aroused by the announcement that a banner prize will be given to the company that has the best average attendance at the drills. A third banner prize will be given to the best-drilled company. The officers will be distinguished by shoulder and arm straps of the carnival colors. A captain will have a shoulder-strap of red with two stars. On the first lieutenant's, shoulder-strap will be one star. The second lieutenant will have a yellow shoulder-strap. The first sergeant will have three stripes of carnival colors and a rosette on the arm.

(New York Tribune:) There is no article of common use more often put on the table in a slovenly way than the ordinary salt. It should be pulverized and in order to do this the salt should be frequently dried and sifted. Special table salts, which are sold at the stores, are usually prepared by mixing a certain percentage of corn starch with the pure salt. The starch acts as an adulterant, and, while it is harmless in the salt for ordinary table use, it would not improve the seasoning qualities, and in the case of clear soup would add enough thickening to partly destroy its clearness.

The same objection applies to adulterating salt in this way, though it be harmless, that there is to adulterating all other condiments. Considered all in all a pure salt, dried in the oven and sifted occasionally, is the very best for all purposes. Heat the salt as hot as possible in the oven for at least ten minutes. Then crush it fine with a potato masher and sift it through a flour sieve. Store it in a wooden box and set it on a high shelf in a dry closet. Treated this way it will not cake. The only reason for its caking is the presence of dampness. Salt which is exposed to the air in a common salt cellar is quite likely to become lumpy, and for this reason the salt box kept in use in the kitchen should be covered.

The Germans use little hanging receptacles for sait in the kitchen, which are covered to protect the contents from dust as well as moisture, and are placed against the wall near the kitchen stove in order to keep it dry and be convenient for its frequent use in cooking. But the German kitchen is in many ways an ideal one. Salt, sugar, flour and all the articles which are in hourly need are kept in boxes of blue and white stone ware, which are much more wholesome and easily kept clean than the receptacles of Japan ware or tin, and are much more picturesque.

There are many uses for common salt besides seasoning. Rock salt, which is by no means the purest salt for culi-

A USEFUL OVERDRESS.

(From Our Regular New York Fashion Correspondent.)

The new styles have one good point some neck, fine bust and fairly small waist, has still too much girth below the waist. This blessing is a new ascessory in the shape of a modish little overdress. It is really a triangle goods, made with one point lo enough to reach almost to the foot of the skirt. Triple box-pleats are made on the hips, the pleat itself coming directly on the hip and the under pleats falling toward front and back. The long point falls in front and the pleating serves to bring the other two, a little drooping, almost together at the back. Much can be skillfully concealed thereby, and too wide hims are safe from unpleasant conspicuousness by the already exaggerated lines the box-pieating makes. A smaller pair of triangles are drawn into a pretty fall of three points by a box-pleating along the base of the triangle, and these fasten at the shoulder, falling over the puff of the sceve. A similar arrangement drapes about the neck exactly as the overdress hangs about the waist, and the plainest sort of a gown is rendered modish by the application of these accessories. For evening use they can be carried out in lace, with charming effect.

A be-furred house dress is shown above, and it is a pretty model, and one which can be made as dressy without the use of fur. As sketched, it is in red-brown cloth, with z yoke of rich, dark-purple velvet, edged with beaver. Two rows of velvet ribbon adorned the foot of the skirt, and the belt was a handsome affair of embroidered leather.

A new notion for proving that your gown is lined with silk all through is to slash the outside goods from the waist to over the hips, the lining appearing in long puffs through the slashes. This serves as a sort of compromise on panniers, and for slender figures is pretty.

Do not make a mistake by paying anybody a profit when you now have a chance to make your purchases here at just one-half of what you are compelled to pay elsewhere for the identical same class of goods. Remember, the City of Paris never did, and does not now, carry any "Auction trash," leavings of other stores, old shelf-worn rubbish, but the goods are first class, bought in the best markets of the world, and now offered at 50 cents on the Dollar. The goods must be sold now. Don't waste time. Come at once, and for your 50 cents purchase merchandise worth $1.00.

Do not pay anybody a profit. When this store is closed will be time enough to pay higher prices, and good living profits, which will surely be the case.

IRRIGATION AND COMPETITION.

The practice of irrigation is extending rapidly, not only in the United States, but in other countries besides. The latest country to adopt a complete system of irrigation is the Argentine Republic, which has suffered a very severe drought for several years past.

At the same time the rivers and of that country are said to afford almost inexhaustible supplies of rater and in the rainy season become swollen to such an extent as to render it impossible to store the nece immense quantities in reserve tanks. The supplementing of these by a sys-tem of parallel canals from various the rivers is advocated, as well as the sinking of artesian wells. districts affected by drought, it is thought, will be devoted hereafter more to the cultivation of wheat, does not suffer so much from its effects as do cattle, sheep and corn. The production of wheat in Argentine is increasing by rapid bounds, the wheat exports jumping from 827,000 1890 to 1,000,000 tons in 1893. It is claimed the exports the current year will reach 2,000,000 tons. This will, of course, increase the com-petition which this country has to meet tion the opinion is far from being correct, and the sooner the field is considwheat-growing. Such increased improvement the better it will be all competition from year to year is to be expected and should excite no suraround. We cannot expect to inaugurate any reforms until we admit that prise. As other fertile sections of the earth come under cultivation and reforms are possible and desirable.

Commenting upon the action of Mr. tain reduced rates on their products to the leading markets of the world we cific Rural Press of San Francisco says:
"It is reasonable to ask if our schools must expect an ever increasing and more serious competition in growing the staple products. This will be more especially the case, for the reason that eration of Americans the kind of cul-ture best suited to their necessities and best calculated to promote the pub-lic welfare. The Rural is frank to say that it thinks not. The system turns out too many half educated and ineffi-cient people. Somehow in four cases of these countries labor is far cheaper than it is or can ever be in the

our agriculturists should give selves up to despair on this account. In the first place the consumption of staple products among our own people of wheat, and barley, and corn, and rice, and hay, and cotton, and wool, and sugar and a score of other articles-is very large, and is constantly creasing. It is not likely that the country will long submit to a system which prevents producers from even supplying the home market with these Then, again, there are a vast umber of high-priced products of a more or less perishable character in the growing of which we should al-ways have a monopoly in this country.

The American farmer will undoubtedly meet with more competition year after year, from now on, in the mark-ets of the world. But if he uses his brains to improve his business and his vote to influence the government in a right direction he need have no fear as to the future.

artificial and unwholesome world. We believe, profoundly, that a boy brought up in a workshop, under an efficient and careful master, or on a farm, under good discipline and instruction, has a better chance for a successful career than the boy ground through the mill of the average school, public or private. We would not eliminate the principle of study, nor subordinate it, but would combine it with labor and apply it to practical things. It is by such combinations and such applications that strong and capable men and women are produced." nother unjust judge, who I found guilty of netarious practices in connection with the election of last November, has skipped out of New York. If the citizens of New York could insure the permanent absence of all these politicians who have run away for a time we should feel like congratulating them. But this is not at all likely. These people will simply stay away until the storm has blown over-until the New York reformers have got over their virtuous outburst of indignation and settled down to the ordinary business life again. Like Buckley in San Francisco, and like the cat in the song, these people will come back.

The moral of this is that good zens should not ignore public affairs until these affairs become so absolutely corrupt and rotten that they are forced to interfere. This is not the way to do business and the sooner that municipal and county affairs are re-Africa 1,563,196, of Russia 1,200,000, and of all other countries 1,160,090. It is a very foolish office-seekers. thing for a business man to say, as they often do, that he has no time to attend to public affairs, when this negligence of his and others who think like him, probably costs him ten times as much during the year as he could possibly make in his private business during the few hours which he to public affairs. Then, after all, he has to join some organization which has been established for the purpose of cleaning out the Augean stable. It would have been far less work and ess expense to have kept that stable in order from the beginning. ### LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Disease Germs in Mattresses.

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—(To the Editor.) Under your heading of "Contagiousness of Consumption" and quotation from Dr. T. M. Prudden, in Sunday's issue, I was foreibly struck with his views as to the inoculation of that much-dreaded disease in the human system from the sputa of consumptives. Every day in our city may be seen several factories making an article of nightly use, dealing consumption and death to innocent sleepers.

I refer to what is known as wool mattresses, upon which thousands sleep every night all over Southern California as well as the rest of the States. And yet our health officers, who should Disease Germs in Mattreskes.

ifornia as well as the rest of the States. And yet our health officers, who should look after such matters take no fotice of it. To be charitable, they may never have seen them in process of manufacture, which I will, in my unskilled manner, attempt to describe.

The first process is in picking up rags by the rag-pickers of town. These gather everything and anything thrown into the streets, back yards or alleys, such as old carpets, rugs, old socks, sacks and the like. They all go in and are sold to the man who makes of them what is called by the manufacturer "shoddy." Not one particle of washing or cleansing do they get. After grinding they are put into ticks and sold as wool mattresses. Think of it. Comment is unnecessary. that it thinks not. The system turns out too many half educated and inefficient people. Somehow, in four cases out of seven, the public-school graduate approaches life with the idea that labor is a thing to be avoided, if not despised; that it is better to live by one's wits than to live by toil; that respectability requires soft hands and holiday manners. It is this utterly false notion that fills the country with shabby gentility, and makes quacks in every department of professional and business life. It is this which makes a score of applicants for a clerkship against one application for a job of manly hard work. To some extent our system of popular education is responsible for this state of things. No matter what it assumes to do, it tends, in fact, to lead boys away from the work-shop and the farm, and to fill their minds with ideas and plans less wholesome and hopeful. And, just as truly, it leads the thoughts of girls away from the sweet and wholesome things of life and sets them to thinking about woman's rights and fashionable society. Our educational system does this because it is largely dominated by sentimental and impractical people. The conceptions of very many teachers are purely scholastic; they have small relationship, or none at all, with the practical things of life, and they lead, the mind of childhood into an abstract, artificial and unwholesome world. We believe, profoundly, that a boy brought washing

His Views on the Attitude of Capital and Labor.

Causes of the Prevailing Hard Times-The Unemployed Being Led by Unscrup-ulous Leaders-Tariff Legislation.

Mr. Studebaker, as the head of the great manufacturing establishment and a man who has attained prominence in politics as well as business, was asked a number of questions pertinent to the time, bearing especially on the present attitude of capital and labor.

to the time, bearing especially on the present attitude of capital and labor. When asked when he thought the situation would improve he said that affairs would surely become brighter soon.

"I think the seriousness of the situation has been magnified by attaching too much importance to these various demonstrations of the unemployed. The men in these movements have been taking bad advice and are being led astray by unscrupulous leaders. The newspapers would do well by treating the matter in a conservative way, counseling the dissatisfied men to remain in their own respective localities. No man, in a community where he belongs, will be allowed to suffer privation if he shows a willingness to work and adapt himself to his changed condition, which is but temporarly. The authorities while doing their best to give work to the temporarly unemployed, should by all means prevent the organization of mobe, made up largely of men who do not want work, and dignify them by the name of army." ounces. many people on their reet, making them walk, instead of allowing them to ride."

"Will the pending money legislation, when completed, afford any relief?", "I think the settlement of the tariff question will do more to bring better times. Capital is naturally shy and no one is making big investments while so much uncertainty exists. There is an evident wish of capitalists to, give as much employment as possible, but they are restricted by the condition of markets. People are not buying luxuries now as they have done. We notice that in the decrease of sales of carriages, and it is the same all over the world."

Mr. Studebaker is quite familiar with Southern California and is sanguine of its future. "This is destined to be a grand country," said he, "and not far in the future, either. The developments that are being made can best be appreciated by observing Eastern people who pay periodical visits to this section. It is a wonderful country, and I am quite in love with it."

[AMUSEMENT RECORD.] AT THE PLAYHOUSES.

LOS ANGELES THEATER.-James O'Neill's version of Sheridan Knowles's great Roman tragedy may be aptly termed "Virginius Up to Date." This ctor has amended certain scenes in the play, but that he has done more than introduce some bits of cheap fustian, is scarcely an open question. he introduction of sheet-iron thunde at the close of act five, and the drag-ging of the dead body of Appius Claud-ius to the steps of the forum in scene three of the last act, add nothing to the lus to the steps of the forum in scene three of the last act, add nothing to the dramatic movement, and the latter is an anti-climax.

It is not too much to say that Mr. O'Neill gives a very pleasing rendition of the role of Virginius, but it falls far short of being a great one. He does not get below the outer feeling of his audience—he does not stir it, and, while in certain scenes he is strong and virile, it is not a sustained strength. In the earlier scenes, and when clad in the toga, Mr. O'Neill has a stately bearing, and uses his voice to fine advantage, but in the more impassioned passages he depends upon a highly-keyed head tone, which, while far-reaching and distinct, is not pleasing to the ear. It is mechanical and seems to have no heart behind it.

The scene of act four, a rocky pass near the Roman camp, upon which is brought the murdered corse of Dentatus, is most beautiful and striking, but Mr. O'Neill's lament over the body of the soldier has that same lack of force, fire and sympathy, which is so marked throughout other portions of the play.

The great scene of act five, in which Virginius slave his deventer to force, fire and sympathy, which is so marked throughout other portions of the play.

The great scene of act five, in which Virginius slays his daughter to save her from the lecherous arms of Applus Claudius, is the most exigent in the play. It demands that the player should suffer the tortures of the damned, and that he should feel that swift and awful anger which drives men to murder. In the face of the awful deed he is about to commit, he should become a madman, but Mr. O'Neill failed to impress one with more than the feeling that he was going through a very ordinary, everyday performance, until after the lictors have driven the populace from the forum, and Virginius appeals to the tyrannical Applus to be apart with his daughter, if but a moment. This scene is played with genuine tenderness and feeling, the actor's voice is deep and vibrant with sympathy, and the climax in which he suddenly draws the knife from the girdle of Caius Claudius, is well wrought out. In a word, the performance of Mr. O'Neill is uneven; it is extremely commonplace. Of his company one can only say that, barring the Dentatus of Beverly Turner, and the Iclius of George H. D. Johnson, it is very poor, and its work is in the nature of an affront. That Mr. O'Neill had a house full of generous friends was evinced by the cordial applause with which he was frequently called before the curtain. Tonight the player will present his old stand-by, "Monte Cristo," and a big house is expected, as the play is a perennial pleasure to the lovers of the romantic drama.

fry of the beautiful—New Catholic Church on Third and Beach streets will swing a new bell, cast from five smaller bells made in Mexico in the last century, and which called the heathen to worship at San Luis Rey Mission in the early part of this century. Workmen are now making the mold at the Standard Iron Works, and the casting of the bell, an event of unique interest, will take place tomorrow. The bell will see a diameter of 37½ inches at the mouth.

The five bells composing the new one were cast in Mexico in 1796, and were sent to San Diego and San Luis Rey by the viceroy of Mexico. The largest of the five weighs 640 pounds and the smallest 106. They are still in fairly good condition, but the course of the church authorities in recasting them into one bell is aproved, for the greater glory of the new church.

The inscription on the new bell will read: "Originally cast in new Spain (Mexico) in 1796: Recast in San Diego, Cal., U.S.A., in 1894: Mater Dolores." The last words are the name of the bell, following ancient custom. Quite a number of interested spectators are expected to be present at the casting of the bell.

WOMEN'S PRESS ASSOCIATION.

The Southern California branch of the Pacific Coast Women's Press As-sociation met yesterday afternoon at No. 347 South Hill street, Mrs. Emma Seckle-Marshall, presiding. It was held for the purpose of discussing the best manner—of entertaining the women of the National Press Association who will visit Southern California the latter part of April. It was suggested that a reception be tendered them in some public hall and that a literary and musical programme be included. They also decided to extend an invitation to all the organizations of women in the city to co-operate with them. All those desirous of assisting are requested to communicate with the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Clara Spalding-Brown, No. 2142 Santee street.

An attempt will be made to have Prof. Lowe extend the courtesy of the Mt. Lowe Railway.

the residents in the vicinity of Second and San Pedro streets were alarmed by a loud report accompanied by a perceptible concussion. Upon investigation it was found that the boiler at W. M. Bentley's small planing mill at No. 316 East Second street had exploded, but that, fortunately, the explosion was unaccompanied by loss either of limb or life.

The boiler, which was an old one, had evidently run dry while the engineer and mill hands were at dinner, for the accident occurred just before the time to resume work. The boiler itself was lifted bodily through the roof and hurled at least one hundred feet away, landing in a vacant lot fortunately. The explosion scattered the contents of the firebox about in all directions and in a few moments a pile of shavings and loose lumber was ablaze. A still alarm was promptly turned in, however, and the fire suppressed in short order, before any further damage ensued.

At last reports there was no change in the condition of Rev. Mr. Carson of Whittier. A man was arrested at Pomona Sunday, on suspicion of being the burglar who shot Mr. Carson. He had a severe wound on his head, but he established the fact that it was caused by cutting out a carbuncle, and was re-

Be fore the men went to work Vinette read a copy of a letter which he had addressed to Secretary of State addressed to Secretary of State Gresham, saying that the second regiment of the so-called industrial army had been organized, and applying for supplies, etc.
Vinette also made himself quite busy taking a list of names, and after he had taken them told them in a com-manding voice they could go to work. He declared that a man who is above ndling a pick and shovel was not

Whether the men will work on First-street hill today seems to be a matter of doubt. Tife committee maintain that officially they will have nothing to do with working the men there, and as Mr. Donegan has left it, there seems to be no one to take charge.

If the chain gang is put to work there today that will probably stop further operations.

AT UNITY CHURCH.

The men formed in line last night and marched to Unity Church, where they attended a meeting of the Single they attended a meeting of the Single Tax Club. After a vocal solo by Mrs. Jennie Sanderson Dist.-Atty. H. C. Dillon was introduced.

Mr. Dillon's appearance was greeted by applause from those in the front of the audience, while from the rear portion, where the "home reserves" were seated, there were a few hisses.

In beginning the speaker said it was a night when every one feels the comfort of a fireside. The past, week had been one full of stirring scenes—the scenes connected with the unemployed.

scenes connected with the unemployed.

He who takes and endeavors to use more of the natural gifts of God than he can use is robbing from some other person that which the latter ought to have. In many cases it is to be seen where the natural products of the earth become owned and controlled by corporations or individuals when it would seem but right they should be owned and controlled by many.

The parties who own these supplies of nature shut off the production of them and the man who labors finds he must pay heavily for them. He feels that an injustice has been done him and, feeling within himself the strength of his muscle and his inborn courage, he will, perhaps, under the influence of inflammatory speeches be induced to do that which he will all the rest of his life regret.

That man is nothing but an agi-infiammatory speeches be induced to untat which he will all the rest of his life regret.

That man is nothing but an agitator who will tell the people the government of the United States is a despotism. That man who advises the use of forec and violence is no true American citizen.

The speaker went on to say he had been informed, although he could not vouch for the accuracy of the information, that the "army" which left this city three or four days ago had in the course of its march pillaged orange groves, held up a butcher's wagen and also robbed a bread wagon. If that were true the men who did it were guilty of nothing less than highway robbery. If the report was not true, then wicked was the hand that wrote it. As the speaker was reciting these reported events there were numerous hisses and some cries of "You'd better be sure of that."

President Hoyt, who was in the chair at the time, rapped sharply for order. The cries still continued and he rapped still more toudly. From this time on the cries were much subdued and the speaker was able to continue.

to create further disturpance the ponce would be called in to quell it. From this time on the cries were much subdued and the speaker was able to continue.

"I am here," he said, "in the hands of men who claim to be American, citizens. If I am not sare in their hands I may as well die."

Referring again to the reported acts of lawlessness on the part of the "industrial army" the speaker said if the men committed the acts which it had been stated they had then they were inspired to do those things by men who have no right to call themselves American citizens.

The reason why they find themselves opposed by the most of the people of this county when any acts of violence are attempted is because the sympathy of the people is not with those who commit such acts.

With the single tax if will be unprofitable to hold vast tracts of land out of use. It is a wrong that must be righted, that compels men to flock into the cities. They should have an opportunity to work on the land.

This nation shall no longer exist than the time it can gain the respect of those who compose it. The man who is withholding from his fellow-men those things which are the natural gifts of God to man—who is fencing in this vast domain—is just as much of an Anarchist as any red-tongued man who stands upon a barrel and harangues a multitude.

Men should hesitate before they take the word of any agitator as to what his motives may be in endeavoring to support the law. That man who will lead his fellow-men into a false position does not rightly understand the principles of this government.

ARRIVAL AT COLITON.

COLTON, March 19—(Special Dispatch.) The "industrial army" arrived on a Southern Pacific freight train about 7 o'clock this morning, and went into camp near the Santa Ana River, beside the railroad track, the companies. Guards were stationed and none of the men rolling up in their blankets about the fires and upon the sunny sides of the banks. There are now 760 in the army, making twelve companies. Guards were stationed and none of the men p the next place. They would stop at Yuma next, and get there upon the Southern Pacific freight trains. They told the Sheriff that they would want 3000 hard-tack, 250 pounds of salt meat, 200 pounds beans, 15 pounds of salt and two boxes of matches. The Sheriff then asked them what they would do in return for these rations if they should be supplied. The reply was that they would take the next freight train for Yuma, and if they could not get food by peaceable means they would have to disband, as they were not lawless, and did not propose becoming such. Upon this declaration the Sheriff obtained the supplies they wanted, substituting 250 pounds of rackers for the hard-tack, as none of that could be secured in this place. But few of the men have been permitted to leave camp, so there has been very little unusual in the appearance of the streets today. An officer from each of the several companies came into town for supplies of tobacco, which was cut into small pieces, or made into small packages and distributed among the chewers and smokers, and nearly every member of the army uses the weed.

At headquarters the American flag is planted, and some deference is shown the officers. The men got nothing to eat until after noon, but there was no complaining. Last night was so cold that most of the men got little sleep, and today much of the time was spent by them in endeavoring to sleep as much as the wind and dust would permit.

Although there was a cold west wind

Although there was a cold west wind and clouds of dust, there were many visitors to the camp during the day. There were large delegations from Riverside and San Bernardino, and the San Bernardino County Supervisors were among the visitors this afternoon.

San Bernardino County Surervisors were among the visitors this afternoon.

Last night there appeared a gang of 110 unemployed bound for San Francisco from San Antonio, Tex., where they organized some time ago. They encamped beside the river about one hundred yards from the "On to Washington" army. They, too, applied to Sheriff Booth for supplies, but were refused aid. They said they wanted enough to take them to San Francisco, which they claim is their destination. They were informed that, if they would be given food to take them out of the county, but that it could not be expected that they would not be expected that they would be fed coming westward and thus induced to invade a country trying to feed so many of the unemployed already found within the State.

The "On to Washington" people claim in their ranks members of about all the professions, as well as laborers and mechanics of all descriptions. Some enterprising Eastern newspapers have secured the enlistment of correspondents to keep them posted upon the inside workings of the army.

The army now stands ready to board the east-bound Southern Pacific freight expected here at 9 or 10 o'clock tonight. The men came into town this afternoon, and are behind buildings out of the wind awaiting the freight train.

COLTON, March 19.—(Special Dispatch.) The industrial army, numbering 487 by actual count, have been encamped at this place since this morning. They propose to capture the through freight on the Southern Pacific Railway, due at this place at 5 p.m. The agent here, Mr. Bright, says that so far as he knows no effort will be made to stop them. The march of these men so far has been without incident, the officers apparently having them well in hand. The underlying principle of the movement is, however, visible in the talk of the men, and that stripped of verblage is anarchy. It is stated that desertions from the ranks have already taken place, and more may be looked for in a short time. "On to Yuma" is now the ory. COLTON, March 19.-(Special Dis-

MASSILLON (O.,) March 19.—From present indications the Coxey army will be ready to march from here next Tuesday. But few of the officers have arrived thus far, but every day's mail brings letters from all parts of the country saying that companies have been organized and that they will be on hand. "Won't things be lively by this time next month? Do you know that this theosophic idea is making a wonderful effect? It is surprising to note how interested an audience becomes when I address them on the subject. This feeling creates harmony and is the only assurance of my success in this new undertaking. I truly believe this movement is the second comir; of Christ.

Coxey and Carl Browne, his assistant, says it is ridiculous to think of failure in connection with the movement. They say they cannot fail. They have planned an attack, a retreat and a method of forming a second attack. There will be no discord.

"The conduct of the army," said Coxey, "will be as its name implies, 'an army of peace."

Extensive preparations are being made at the Coxey farm. A red and green band wagon with a high platform will be built, from which to address the crowds. In the center will be a huge, red wheel, with five miles of "good roads" petition wound around it. At every stopping place, the assembled crowd will be invited to sign their names. After reaching Washington, the five miles of petitions will be unloaded on Congress. There are banners with inscriptions as follows:

"Interest-bearing bonds feed on nothing but gold and honest labor;" "Peace on earth good will to men, but death to the shylock of interest on bonds;" "We workingmen want work, not charity; how can we buy at the stores with charity and cast-off clothing?"

Midnight Blaze.

At 12 o'clock last night an alarm was rung in from box No. 45, for a lively biaze at Trowbridge's delicacy store, No. 442 South Spring street. The fire, when first discovered by Officer Mercer, was in the rear of the store, but, during the short interval between his running to the nearest box and his return, the flames had traveled to the front, and had reached the awning. The fire brigade responded to the summons with commendable promptitude, and soon had the blaze under control, in spite of the high wind prevailing at the time. The occupants of Mrs. J. R. Yandenworth's nine-room lodging-house, in the upper story, were driven out by the smoke and heat in various stages of dishabile, but, fortunately, the building being of brick, the fire was confined to the store in which it started, and they were enabled to return to their rooms after the smoke had cleared away. B. Cohn's tailor shop, adjoining the burned-out store, escaped the flames, but some little damage was done by smoke and water. Trowbridge's loss, estimated at 3300, was covered by insurance. The origin of the blaze is not known, but the most plausible theory advanced is that some of the greasy boards in the vicinity of the stove became ignited from the ashes, which the wind fanned into flame.

Col. George Woodford was present and at the conclusion of the lecture by Mrs. Smith made a few remarks.

Mrs. Smith will continue her lectures to women only each afternoon this week at 2:30 o'clock at the First Congregational Church, and give popular addresses Tuesday, Friday and Saturday evenings at the same place. All pre invited. Admission free.

THE UNEMPLOYED PROBLEM

Is Single Tax the Remedy for the Present Evils?

Back to the Land" the Cry, and Will That Effect a Cure?—Striking Anomaly of Our Existing Industrial Grave questions are now afflicting the country, and along with them arises the problem of what is best to be done to alleviate the conditions which have forced themselves upon us. These hungry millions of unemployed are distributed all lover the nation, and, while they are now orderly and patient, it cannot be expected that they will continue meekly to starve and remain idle. These moles of miserable beings have appeared in all nations that have decayed, and their appearance has always been a sure symptom of impending dissolution. With the presence of the tramp there has also come amongst us the multi-millionaire. Do the same causes produce both? Some maintain they do. There are other things to look at. With millions of idle men, the products of whose labor millions need, there are billions of acres of idle land upon which they might exert their force, and billions of idle money awaiting investment at 2 per cent., which would put them to work. Yet all these three things, the basis of all production, are lying idle. Funny, isn't it? With millions needing clothing, the cloth milli shuts down because of an over-production of cloth upon the market; with full granaries, men starve. Why is this? The single-taxers say they can remedy the evil by levying a tax on land values which would restrict land-holding to the users, and squeeze out the speculator. Will that create a cure?

While it is obligatory upon all roads to post a ten days' notice of an advance in one way rates the railroad of-ficials claim and usually exercise the right to withdraw round-trip or excursion rates without notice. People who are waiting for the last possible day on are waiting for the last possible day on which to buy tickets to the East will do well to mark this distinction between one-way and round-trip tickets, as it is a most important one. There is great probability now of an early sottlement of "the transcontinental rate war, as the Southern Pacific is said to be ready to capitalists on the terms." be ready to capitulate on the terms ramed by the Santa Fe.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC COAL SUPPLY. (San Francisco Call, March 17:) An important contract was recently entered into by the San Carlos Coal Company of Pittsburgh and the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, by the terms of which the former, owning extensive coal lands in Texas, is to furnish the railway company with 115,000 tons annually, 315 tons per day. The transaction also embraces the building of a railroad twenty-six miles in length, at a cost of $300,000. The property on which the company is now operating consists of 1280 acres of land in Presidio county, Texas, acquired by purchase in fee from the State of Texas, all of which is underlaid with coal, and $5,120 acres held by the company under a lease from private owners in fee for the term of thirty years from May if, 1892. In addition to this the company has a lease for twenty-five years on 2,000,000 acres of land situate in the district of Iturbide, Republic of Mexico, on the Rio Grande River. Prospecting has been carried on in the Mexican property sufficiently to determine that it contains a bed of coal about fifty miles in length and from ten to fifteen miles in width. The vein is forty-one inches thick and of good quality and semi-bituminous in character. It is said that at the mines now open the San Carlos Company can get $2.50 per ton for coal on the car and the profit will be about $1 per ton.

GAINED ITS POINT.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—W. A. Bissell, general passenger agent of the Atlantic and Pacific, was asked this afternoon if the news was correct that the railway war was practically over and that, in the course of ten days, overland passenger rates will go back to the figures which prevailed before March 1. "Yes," said he, "that is substantially true. The basis of the settlement is that the Southern Pacific will withdraw its boycott on the interchange of passenger business with us at Los Angeles. That is all we were fighting for."

The whole matter will be taken up with the officers of the two companies, the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific, next month. The Southern Pacific Company will do San Diego no injustice."

THE PULLMAN'S STAY. NEW YORK, March 19.—Col. John McCook, one of the receivers of the Santa Fe system, said to an Associatep Press reporter today that there is no truth in the statement that Wagmans on the railway named SCRAP HEAP.

President Reinhart desires to have it known that neither the Pullman company nor any one else has made him a present of a private car or anything else.

(Kansas City Star, March 18:) J. J. Frey, general manager, and H. R. Nickerson, general superintendent of the Santa Fe Railway, were at the Union Depot this morning. There didn't seem to be any coldness between them, as has been reported. Mr. Frey has been in the South for a month. He denied emphatically the reports of his resignation and said there was not a particle of truth in the statement that the relations between him and General Superintendent Nickerson were unpleasant. Mr. Frey said: "Mr. Nickerson is a vigorous, vigilant officer and our relations have always been entirely harmonious."

GREELEY-SHULTZ.

The First Methodist Episcopal Church was the scene last evening of an unusual and interesting wedding, it being the union of Miss Lizzie Shultz and E. H. Greeley. The main feature lay in the fact that both are missionaries, and will leave at once to found an industrial and mission school in White Plains, Liberia, Africa. They have been closely identified with religious work through the medium of the First Methodist Episcopal Church. The bride was formerly a teacher in the public schools of this city. Mr. Greeley is a nephew of the late Horace Greeley, and was a missionary in Africa under Bishop Taylor, until two years ago, when he came to Southern California for his health.

The church was very prettily decorated, the altar being banked with potted plants and ferns. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Campbell, the couple standing in a gateway of sweet elysium and smilax. The bride wore a becoming gown of gray cloth, trimmed with silver passementerie, and carried a bouquet of sweet pea blossoms. At the conclusion of the ceremony an informal reception was held, after which short congratulatory addresses were made, interspersed with musical selections. Mrs. M. S. W. Pond spoke in behalf of the missionary society, Mrs. J. D. Burch for the Epworth League, Mrs. Birdsall for the Chinese Sunday-school, H. P. Sweet for the church, and J. H. RIVERSIDE, March 19.—About one thousand carloads of oranges have been shipped from this city so far this sesson. Daily shipments aggregate twenty carloads now, with increased orders coming in every day. The fruit exchanges have raised the price of choice fruit to $1.30 per box and seedlings to $1.15 per box. The price of the best of fancy brands has not been raised, but as the demand is rapidly increasing, the figures on these will be put up shortly.

NEW YORK, March 19.—On the Stock Exchange today the week opened with a firm tone to the speculation and generally higher prices, Chicago Gas, which was 1 per cent. down, being the only notable exception. Sugar showed more strength and activity, the first sale being at an advance of 1 per cent. In the early dealings a further improvement of ½ per cent. was made, followed by a reaction of ¼ per cent. Washington advices coming forward to the effect that the redners would be given increased protection, induced purchases of the shares, and rumors were circulated that the recent bull pools on Sugar were again acquiring stock for the purpose of another upward movement. The result was an advance of 2½ per cent., at which reached a reaction of 1½ per cent., but at the late dealings there was a recovery of ½ per cent., leaving a gain of 2½ per cent. The grangers kept inside a 1 per cent. Ilmit on moderate transactions, and show an improvement of ¼ ½ per cent. Ilmit on moderate transactions, and show an improvement of ¼ ½ per cent. President Teed said in behalf of the Council that that body appreciated the split in which they had made known their needs. They were not agitators, as were those who had left the city on the way to Washington. He believed, however, that inasmuch as the Council had expended all it could see its way clear to do, the only solution of the problem is to ask private citizens who are charitably disposed to give aid.

Mr. Tingstrom, the spokesman, said the men do not want charity. They want work. The Associated Charities had done an excellent work, but many of the men will, to a large extent, go hungry, and sit by cold stoves rather than ask for charity.

Court Notes.

At the City Hall yesterday there was considerable activity, as is always the case on Council days. The crowd yesterday was considerably swelled by a number of unemployed, who took a deep interest in the proceedings affecting them.

At the way to Washington. He believed that in consideration of the present situation the city might do with less of its fuxuries in the way of street sprinkling and electric lighting. Councilman Nickell said he believed the wealthy citizens of the town should subscribe liberally to a fund to be used to give the needy men work. He believed by some means the city should duplicate any sum subscribed by a citizens' committee.

Councilman Rhodes said he believed there are a number of banks in the city that are interested in having the First-street hill out down. It seemed to him that those banks should subscribe liberally for that purpose.

The matter was referred to committee of the whole, with the understanding that some action is to be taken at the special meeting of the Council this afternoon.

CITY ATTORNEY'S REPORT.

The City Attorney presented the following:

An ordinance giving property-owners permission to grade and curb Otter street by private contract. Action deferred.

An ordinance amending section 5 of ordinance No. 202, regulating riding and driving upon the public streets. Referred to the Board of Public Works.

In regard to the petition of the Southern Pacific Company asking that the penalty of $8.77 upon the taxes of the property of the San Gabriel Valley Rapid Transit Raliroad be remitted for the reason that the taxes had not been paid through inadvertence, I recommend that the same be denied. Any taxpayer who had failed to pay his taxes could make the same excuse and the result would be that no penalties would be collected. Adopted.

The Los Angeles and Pacific Raliroad Company have brought suit to condemn a right-of-way for a raliroad through certain property, being lot 3 of block 25, Hancock's survey, belonging to the city and situated south of Sixth street and next to the west boundary of the city. I wish to be instructed as to what steps you wish taken in this matter. Referred to the Board of Public Works and Mr. Munson.

STREET REPAIRS The Board of Public Works reported recommending that the Street Superintendent be instructed to experiment for three days and ascertain the cost of repairing holes in paved streets at an expense not to exceed $150.

Councilman Munson insisted that for that sum the experiment would not be a fair one and the report was amended so as to make the allowed amount $300. An 'ordinance amending the old back ordinance passed several years ago so as to give hackmen under certain restrictions the privilege of standing in front of property, even against the objection of the property owner, was adopted.

THE COURTHOUSE. THE COURTS.

A Sensational Story Brought to Light in the Township Court.

Undue familiarity with another man's wife has caused William Barnet a great deal of trouble in the way of mental anguish and physical suffering, and he has finally decided to invoke the aid of the law in order that he may preserve a whole scalp and unbroken bones. That is, he has applied for such aid, although it is another question whether or not it will be extended to him, after the court has heard the facts in the matter related.

Atterneon Session.

Upon reassembling it was ordered that when the Council adjourn it do so till 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Councilman Munson moved to authorize the Street Superintendent to hire three more teams to work on First-street hill and put in weekly requisitions to pay for the same. Action on the motion was deferred till this afternoon's meeting.

The City Engineer presented an ordinance of intention to establish the grade of Figueroa street between the Southern Pacific crossing and the south city limits. Adopted.

AGAIN THE LABOR QUESTION.

Theodore W. Pinther and Mrs. M.

W. Alex appeared before the Council and were heard. Mr. Pinther urged that employment for wages be given the men working on First-street hill. He understood that the Council had "shoved" the matter over to the Associated Charities.

President Teed, with considerable

Barnet, and the cause of his having been wounded was not at all due to a runaway, but too close contact with a cane in the hands of Henderson. After having the cut dressed, he went away, and was not seen again until yesterday afternoon, when he sought out Justice Bartholomew, and asked that Henderson be bound over to keep the peace.

As already stated, Henderson's antipathy for Barnet grew out of the latter's intimacy with the former's wife. Barnet became acquainted with Mrs. Henderson in the course of his rounds, while soliciting orders for his goods. His visits occurred almost invariably when the husband was away from home, and he stopped longer each time he called and talked more. Eventually, so the story goes, the acquaintance ripened into extreme intimacy, and Barnet met Mrs. Henderson at various places by appointment, according to his own statement. Henderson, meanwhile, was working hard to provide for his little household, be inguiterly ignorant of the impending disturbance of his peace of mind. Barnet admits unhesitatingly that he did take liberties with Mrs. Henderson, but makes the shallow claim that the latter was the first to offer advances of an unbecoming nature. After they had become well acquainted, he said, Mrs. Henderson met him frequently for a time, until he ceased to pay her attentions. On Tuesday of last week, while passing the Henderson place, he observed the husband standing in theyard. Henderson called to him, and asked Mim to come in, saying that his wife desired to get some more of a certain brand of coffee. Suspecting nothing, Barnet went in and took a chair. Then Henderson's manner changed. He said: "My wife has told me all about it." and, reaching for a stick resembling a cane he deait. Barnet a heavy blow across the forehead. Barnet stated that he was knöcked senseless, and that Henderson and his w'fe threw water in his face to revive him. They then started him off for the Receiving Hospitai, Henderson whispering flercely in his ear: "I've got't in for you; I'll give you one of those blows for every time that you have been with my wife." Then Barnet stagered down town, where he thought to hid de the true circumstances by telling the yarn about the runaway. As soon as his head was fixed up, he made his way toward his room, on Sand street. Just as he was about to enter the gateway he happened to given fu

MORE OBJECTIONS.

The question as to what use to the community or assistance to the codicts of justice a grand jury can be becomes a more mooted one every day to the laymen and attorneys who discuss the matter about the corridors of the Courthouse, and if any of the indictments already found can be annulled upon the objections taken to the proceedings by which they were evolved the opinion as to the uselessness of that "body of the inquisition" will be greatly strengthened.

that "body of the inquisition" will be greatly strengthened.

Last year the county was subjected to the experience of paying for the organization of a grand jury, hiring experts, witnesses and other persons and in the end, after the jury had been in session for some time, it was declared to have been illegally organized and its work vold. This time there does not seem to be any probability of a repetition of the dissolution ceremony, but that all of the indictments will be made to "stick" is by no means so certain.

will be made to "stick" is by no meaning will be made to "stick" is by no meaning in the case of ex-Deputy County Assessor Al Cobler, who is charged with having embezzled several hundred dollars while in office last year, steps have already been taken to test the validity of the indictments, the result of which will be awaited with some interest.

As soon as the clerk's desk in Department One was opened yesterday morning C. C. Stephens, Esq., filed a written motion to set a ide the indictments against Al Cobler on grounds as follows: That the requisite number of ballots were not drawn from the jury box of the county; that notice of the drawing of the grand jury was not given; that the drawing therefor was not had in the presence of the officered signated by law; that no witnesses were examined before the grand jury upon the finding of the said indictments; that the names attached to said indictments as witnesses appearing before the grand jury were not sworn or examined upon the hearing thereof. Each of the individual grand jurors was challenged upon the ground that a state of mind existed on his part in reference to the case and to the defendant which prevented him from acting impartially and without prejudice to the substantial rights of the defendant and that all of them had reason to believe that other evidence was within their reach which would have explained away the charge and that the jury did not order such evidence produced.

The grand jury having just assembled in a room on the fourth floor the balliff was directed to bring the members down. After they had filed in and taken their seats the court stated to them that they had been summoned to answer questions relative to the indictments found against Cobler, the privilege of asking which was allowed the attorneys for the defendants in such cases. The jurymen were then sworn as a body, when Secretary T. H. Rhodes was interrogated by Attorneys stephens first, and the remaining jurors afterward. Counsel attempted to show that partiality had been exercised in that the defendant and his friends had not been also summoned as witnesses at the time the investigation was had, upon which the indictments were found, but the court sustained the objections made by Deputy District Attorney Conklin and refused to know whether or not the witnesses whose names were attached to the indictments were found, but th ing the matters up. The grand jury was then excused and retired to prepare more indictments.

MUST GO TO JAIL

George Abbott, the notorious "mac," will now be compelled to serve his time in the penitentiary upon former conviction of the crime of burglary, for the Supreme Court has confirmed the judgment entered against him and refuses to order a new trial. Complaint was made on the appeal of certain remarks by the trial court touching the conduct of plaintiff's attorney in regard to the bribery of a certain witness. The higher court is of the opinion that if the circumstances were such as to impress the Judge with a grave suspicion that the witness had been tampered with the investigation should have been conducted in the absence of the jury, in order that the jurors might not have been influenced in their verdict by any developments arising from such investigation, but no exception was noted to the course pursued and for that reason it was not necessary to pass upon this branch of the controversy.

The court had given the jury the following instructions, which, it was claimed, did not state the true rule of law: "The mere possession of stolen property, unexplained by the defendant, however soon after the taking, is not sufficient to justify a conviction. It is merely a guilty circumstance, which, taken in connection with other testimony, is to determine the question of guilt." And again: "If the jury believe from the evidence that the property mentioned in the evidence was stolen from the premises described in evidence, and received into possession of the defendant shortly after beligs stolen, the fallure of the defendant to account for such rossession or to show his guilt and the accused is bound to explain the possession in order to remove the effect of the possession of the defendant the property mentioned in the property mentioned in the property in the property in the property in the property from the house bear a more appropriate phrase than "a guilty circumstance." William Schneider, the young German recently held to answer by Commissioner Van Dyke to the charge of having violated the postal laws relating to obscene literature, appeared before Judge Ross yesterday with his attorney. Walter F. Haas, Esq., and applied for his release from the custody of the Marshal, through the medium of habeas corpus proceedings.

The main point relied upon by the petitioner is that the commission of the offense was not consummated until after the complaint charging him with thad been illed. In other words, the postal authorities swore to a complaint charging him with that been illed. In other words, the postal authorities swore to a complaint charging him with having imported obscene photographs from Germany through the malls before he received the package containing the objectionable matter, in order that, when he applied for it he could be arrested. At the close of the argument in support of the petition Judge Ross took the matter under advisement.

In fact, it was mutually understithat she was to return next morn at 11 o'clock and resume her work extra nurse, but she nei ther return nor sent for her clothing and money which was due her.

A QUESTION OF A BOARD BILL.

The case of Peter Klehn vs. N. Schroder occupied the attention of Justice Lawrence and a jury on Monday. The plaintiff sued to recover $20, the amount of a board bill alleged to be due him by the defendant. J. G. Rossiter, Esq. was attorney for the plaintiff and Benjamin W. Hahn. Esq., looked after the interests of the defendant. The jury was made up as follows: A. J. Wright, W. S. Arnold, J. W. Wilson, J. Beebe, A. Bye, N. L. Frank, J. E. Doty, R. Williams, O. T. Nay, J. Smith and J. H. Boker. Numerous legal complications were brought out in the testimony of several witnesses, so that the jury retired shortly before 4 o'clock in a divided state of mind and at the time of sending in this report they had not agreed upon a verdict:

Serious Agricultural Outlook—Court Notes—Brevities.

SANTA BARBARA, March 19.—(Special Correspondence.) It is a duty to presage for the best, even in the face of adverse indications, but all hope of saving the winter crops has been well night smothered by the gust which swept over the mountains from the Mojave two days ago. It is true our visitation was but a mouthful compared with the state of things that prevailed elsewhere, the dusty cloud having been met on arrival here by a brisk sou'wester from the ocean, and driven back whence it came. We could have well dispensed with the northwest wind which as been making things drier, dustier and more hopeiess for the past three days. So far as antecedent data may be reached for a period of thirty years or more, the cold spell which has been a feature of the drought we are suffering is unprecedented. Other dry years have been accompanied. Other dry years have been accompanied when the ulley, the two there when the pulled of the dust storm was fet anothers in this section, dairymen in particular, are turning their stock onto the young barley, having given up all hope of the crop reaching maturity, and anxious to get some benefit from their plowing. This move has prevented the cereal reaching the jointing stage, so that, in the event of a late rain, the cattle may be run off the plowed land, and, so far from having been a detriment, their pasturing will be found to have benefited the crop. In three weeks or so corn should be planted. It is need-ess to say, unless the ground gains moisture, the grain had better remain sacked. On the whole, with the exception of Santa Ynez, prospects are 40 per cent. better in the northern portion of the county than here, southwards to Los Angeles. Ally is holding here at 316 a ton, retailing at 117, or 85 cents a hundred. Some weeks ago, when the possibility of a crop failure began to suggest itself, the feed stores commenced to ship hay in considerable quantities from the South. Had they been able to continue this at normal freight rat Serious Agricultural Outlook-Court Notes

Constable Preble's Claim for Fees Knocked Out.

Judge Towner Decides That He Has No Cas Against the County—An Important Lawsuit — Notes from Fullerton.

SANTA ANA, March 19.—(Special Correspondence.) Constable Preble's claim against the county for fees for handling tramps was "knocked out" by Judge Towner today in the Superior Court. The claim originally was for $59.75, and of Tower today in the Superior Court. The claim originally was for $59.75, and of that the Supervisors allowed $25.75. The remainder was disallowed after being investigated at the time by the District Attorney. Constable Preble then brought salt in the Justice's Court and got judgment for the full amount. An appeal was taken by the District Attorney and today Judge Towner non-suited the plaintiff on the ground that when a man has a claim against the county, part of which is disallowed by the Supervisors, he must if he is dissatisfied, present the claim at the next meeting of the board for reconsideration. This Preble failed to do, and the court holds that he is forever barred from prosecuting that part of the claim. This is a most important decision, as it will hereafter have a bearing upon all claims presented to the Board of Supervisors and disallowed for any reason or reasons. Hereafter when a claim is disallowed on account of an error or otherswise, the author of the claim must present it again at the next regular meeting of the board or be forever barred from prosecuting that portion of his claim previously objected to.

But Little Wind and Dust—Two Interesting Sporting Events.

POMONA, March 19—(Special Correspondence.) Pomona has had but very little wind and dust during the day, while indications point to quite a sandstorm east of this localty. There is one bad feature abou tthe matter, however, and that is the effect it has upon drying the for even a brisk breeze evaporates moisture very fast indeed.

The Pomonans who take interest in such affairs at all feel quite buoyant over the victories won by the basebail and tennis clubs respectively at Claremont and Ontarlo, in the former contest by a scere of 16 to 3 in favor of Pomona and in the latter by two straight sets, 6-2, 6-4, also for Pomona.

Among those who were seeking fun and recreation from home on Sunday were a party of bloyclists to Pasadena, and also of young people to San Antonio Canyon by carriage. generally been displayed collequially, or in forensic or parliamentary debate, and does not abound in the works of purely irish writers. Swift was a master of wit, but it was of a bitter, savage kind; Goldsmith abounded in humor, but, like many Irishmen of ability, he left Ireland young and became to all intents and purposes an Englishman. Burke, who was born in Ireland and remained there till he was 21, rarely condescended to let his humor flash out. Moore possessed the humor flash out. Moore possessed the pathos which is akin to humor. He stands almost alone. Sher-faan was a genuine Irishman, and he showed in "Sit Lucius O'Trigger" that he understood the wit of the Green Isle, but for some reason he used it little. The true quality different in the stands of the little was not exhibited at the loss of his life boucleauly and ward the close of his life pour at the into English pastures, but oward the close of his life pour at the lose of his life was the second the life work of the life has been and loved so well. He who wishes to enjoy the phosphorence teleans of Ir-sh wit must read the chronicles of the Irish bar. He will not find them collected in any single work, but the ana of Curren and Shel are exattered through books of memoirs and reminiscences like Le Fann's, and they repay a hunt. A number of them are published in Cox's book on "Wit and Humor," indeed not a few of the wittleisms of the American bar which go the rounds period.cally, have an Hibernian flavor. Cox himself was half an Irishman. It was curious that he who figured for many years as the wit of Congress should have been at last the subject of one of the best retorts ever uttered in the capital by one who had never been regarded as a jester. Cox had been arraigning n savage terms the dominant party in Congress, which was led by Ben Butler. While he was speaking Butler came in and, after a few moments, Cox stoppet. Butler rose and said that he would answer the member from New York in the notes of an organ-grinder who, as he entered the House, strong Testimony Introduced for the Defense Papers in a Heavy Damage Suit Filed-Notes and SAN BERNARDINO, March 19.— (Special Correspondence.) The defense in the Burt will contest opened this morning with remarkably strong evidence, much of which was a flat contradiction of the evidence presented by the contestant. Dr. McMurdo, Mrs. Rockfel er and Mrs. Wilber, all of San Francisco, and employed by Mrs. Burt when she attempted to adopt a child in that city, were upon the witness stand. Dr. McMurdo testified that Mrs. Burt wanted him to help deceive her husband by testifying to her giving birth to a child, but he refused and warned her against such proceedings. Mrs. Rockfeller secured a room for Mrs. Burt and bathed and dressed the baby she got. Mrs. Middleton was placed upon the stand stated that she came to Mrs. Burt's rooms Mesoday and was told that the child-was.born-the Saturday before. She remarked that it looked much older, and told Mrs. Burt's he was running a great-risk in being up two days after confinement. Mrs. Burt she was running a great-risk in being up two days after confinement. Mrs. Burt replied that it was not unusual for "we English." Mrs. Clara Wilber, Burt's daughter, testified that she did not write him the letter purporting to be written by her and directing the disposition of the property by her father, and never saw it until it was offered as evidence in court.

SAN BERNARDINO BREVITIES. SAN BERNARDINO BREVITIES.

Divorce proceedings have been instituted against Mabel V. Osborne by her husband, Jonas B. Osborne. They were united in wedlock in San Francisco seven years ago, and he now charges his wife with desertion.

The West Etiwanda Land and Water Company, with a capital stock of $50,000, has filed articles of incorporation. The directors are H. C. Oakley, J. W. Oakley, Isaac Garbutt, L. E. Knowles, J. W. McFatridge.

REDLIANDS.

REDLIANDS. March 19—(Special Correspondence.) Fifteen hundred trees are to be set upon the High School grounds, and the work of planting is progressing under the landscape skill of F. P. Hoop. Richards Brothers, of the Moreno-Alessandro Nurseries, have presented half the trees to the city.

Hithe hotels are having their rooms filled with guests almost daily. There has never before been a season when Redlands had so many Eastern visitors.

The Mendelssohn Quintette of Boston are to be brought here on the 26th inst. and give a concert in the Y.M.C.A. Hall. The need for another tourist hotel in this cit has been very evident for several weeks, there being such numbers of Easterners as to fill the hotels to overflowing. The management of the Terracins of the Terracins as to fill the hotels to overflowing are remarked that there was need for twice as many rooms as it has. The Sunnyside Water Company has decided to change from the open ditch to the pipe-line system of carrying its water.

Messrs. Hosking, Juch and Marshall stiff maintain that the construction of the Barton road by the State-street extension will be a great damage to them and be no advantage to any one over the Water and Orange-street route, which they favor.

EASTER MILLINERY.

Easter is near at hand, and if you want a new hat now is the time to make your selections. Since our opening we have been exceedingly busy. Our patterns have been highly admired 2nd our sales have gone beyond our expectations. We were obliged to have new pattern hats, which will be on display this week. For High Art Millinery we are the acknowledged leaders of Southern California. All are cordially invited to visit our parlors and view the display of Pattern Hats. This week we intend showing a great many new noveltles which have just been received. Our Eastern representative has displayed excellent taste in his selections. We feel proud in saying that he has confined himself to only the finest materials and wares of the latest fashions. Catering for the best trade, his instructions were that nothing was too fine. We want your trade, and only expect to gain it by the merits of our wares and the prices we quote. If you will favor us with your presence this week we are positive it will more than repay you for your trouble.

Dr. Wong's SANITARIUM

Four years ago my daughter, Virginia Beil was treated by Dr. Wong for what physicians called hip disease, and had pronounced incurable after treating her for eight years. Dr. Wong's diagnosis was that she was afflicted with one of thirteen forms of cancer. His medicine effected a permanent cure in seven months' time. Two years ago my grandson became blind in one eye. Dr. Wong restored his sight in three weeks' time. A LASSWELL Savannah, Cal.

After I had been treated eleven years by six different doctors, for consumption, and they had stated that I couldn't live two months, I took Dr. Wong's medicine and was cured in seven montas I enjoy excellent health and weigh 170 pounds.
